Footnotes

1. With Codingplus OCR services (99 + %) it is not uncommon to search through three to four pages before finding an OCR error (3rd generation or newer).
2. Most OCR services boast 95% accuracy. At that rate, five characters out of every 100 (or 100 characters on a typical page) are inaccurate.
3. OCR is not ordinarily provided with Full Bib Coding; and is additionally charged when provided.
4. Full Bib providers normally charge this field additionally, on a per page basis, at the rate of 20¢ per page.
5. With most Full Bib providers, enhanced subject is additionally charged.
6. At the price of 30¢ per page (capped at 90¢ per doc), the Codingplus enhanced OCR, Names-in-Text, and human coded Full Bib Indexing services are included at that price.
7. This solution provides much lower quality OCR results and NO logical unitization. Therefore the record containing the OCR "hits" may be many logical documents resulting in more time for researchers to locate specific references.
8. Full Bib providers normally charge on a per document basis at the rate of $1.35 to $2.35 per document. Using an average of 3 pages per document to arrive at the estimate, cost will range from 45¢ - 78¢ per page.

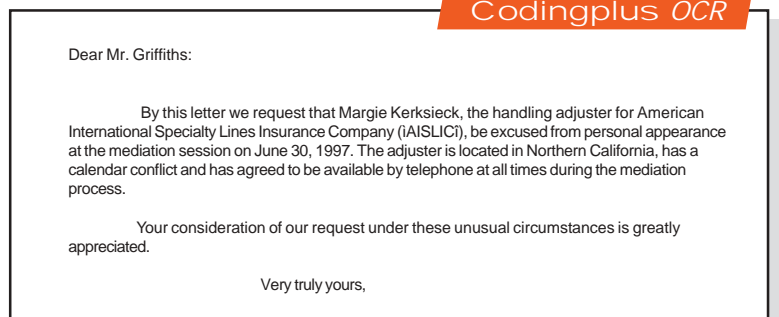

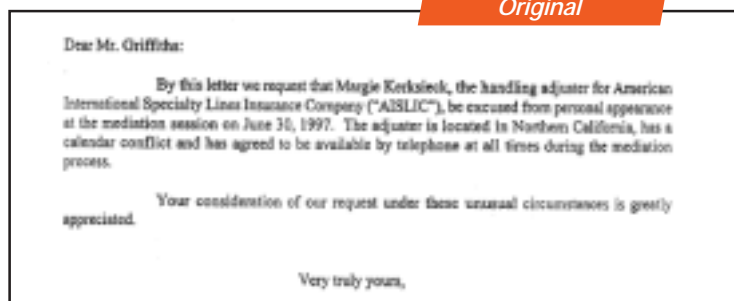

At last the Full Bib Coding vs OCR debate is over !
